august update » cloudscape NAP bargain of the year

Cloudscape Winery has undergone a change of ownership, and as a result you have the opportunity to purchase their wines at a bargain basement price until stocks are sold.

At the more premium end of the scale a big bold red from the Barossa that truly over delivers for its price. The Moppa shiraz from Kalleske is voluptuous and multi-layered, and suitable for medium term cellaring if you can keep your hands off it

What is the difference between organic and biodynamic? The answer to this question takes more than a couple of lines, but I have attempted to give my take on the salient points below. Plus some links for some interesting further reading.

Happy drinking (and reading)!

Cloudscape Winery: No Added Preservative Wines from $12pb

Drummond > Macedon Ranges > VIC
no added preservative > vegan suitable

Made from estate grown fruit. The vines are un-irrigated, grown without chemicals and are nurtured with organic compost and biodynamic preparations. The wine is not filtered and contains no fining agents.

Cloudscape 2007 Pinot Noir

The nose shows wild brambly berry fruit with a little bit of thyme & Christmas cake spice. The earthy palate is smooth with fine drying tannins.

Cloudscape 2006 Cab. Sauvignon Merlot Cab. Franc

This wine displays a vibrant ruby red colour and aromas of raspberry & blackcurrant. The palate reveals blackberry cherry and spice as well as secondary flavours of pencil shavings, cedar and mocha. Subtle oak flavours and soft tannins give great mouth feel and length.

Cloudscape 2007 Shiraz

Garnet red in colour, it has aromas of wild red berries, with a touch of aniseed and pepper. The palate delivers with savoury spice, juicy acid, and fine chalky tannins.

Kalleske 2008 Moppa Shiraz » limited stocks

Barossa > South Australia
certified organic > vegan suitable

In 1853 the Kalleske farm and vineyard was established at Moppa, a small sub-district of Greenock in the Barossa's North-West. The Moppa district was a flourishing settlement of pioneering farming families and gold miners, and as a wine growing sub-region it produces substantial reds.

Tasting Notes: Emanating from the glass are lifted, powerful aromas of cloves, perfume, deep rose, tar, black plum and dark chocolate. These flavours continue to the extremely mouthwatering and juicy full-bodied palate. Rich fruit intensity is supported by stylish and subtle barrel fermentation characters and ripe, dusty tannins add good structure to the wine. » read more

How does the pricing work?

Each wine may have three different bottle prices depending on the quantity being bought.

1. one plus btls in less than a case

- » the standard undiscounted price for the wine
- » still usually cheaper than the RRP at other retailers

2. mixed case

- » order any combination of 12 or more wines from across our entire wine list
- » you save about 5-6% on the standard price

3. straight case

- » order a full case of the same wine to receive the best price
- » in most instances a case of wine is 12 btls, except for a few of our more expensive when it will be listed as 6 btls
- » you save between 10-15% on the standard price

Review: "This, from one of the Barossa's best young winemakers, Troy Kalleske, is a delicious drop and amazing value when compared to some of the region's more famous brews. The aromas are of dried spices, nutmeg, clove and cinnamon, together with dark berry and plum base-notes. In the mouth it's soft and sweet fruited, savoury tannins chiming in to provide a dry but supple finish. It's quite succulent, round and smooth."

What is the difference between organic and biodynamic?

making compost

Ok most people understand the basics of organics, no use of synthetic herbicides pesticides fertilizers etc. Sourcing nutrients and compounds needed to grow your produce from natural and sustainable sources and being as self contained as possible. Biodynamics, sometimes referred to as 'enhanced organic' or 'super-charged organic', is all of the above but goes further. It employs an overlaying philosophy that comes from the teachings of the Austrian philosopher Rudolf Steiner back in the 1920's. His is a holistic approach to agriculture, where all animals, plants and the solar system are thought of as living inter-related system that impact on each other.

cow horns for horn manure

"we are helping wines catch the climate and soil"

Nicolas Joly » renowned French biodynamic winemaker

In practical terms, biodynamic agriculture focuses on having healthy, alive, nutrient rich soils and a well balanced environment to allow the plant to harness everything it needs to grow. It uses specific herb and mineral preparations to achieve this – quite similar to homeopathy. These preparations are used to enhance the vitality of plants, soils, composts and livestock. One of the main preparations is called preparation 500 or cow horn manure. It is produced by burying cow manure in a cow horn over winter, digging it up in spring, stirring the resultant rich humus in water to dynamise it and spraying it over your vineyard. Manual/ mechanical weed control, nontoxic pest management, and sustainable animal husbandry are also employed.

lunar calendar

"It's just such a satisfying way to farm."

John Nagorcka » Hochkirch Winery

Biodynamic also teaches that all specific vineyard and winery operations should be timed to coincide optimally with cosmic rhythms, particularly lunar cycles. This concept is a bit harder to grasp for most of us. But in very basic layman's terms, just as the moon influences the tides, it also influences water in plants and animals.

stirring preparation 500

"Biodynamic grapes are a great expression of terroir and a sense of place"

Vanya Cullen » Cullen Wines

So you can see that some people might perceive biodynamics to be a bit whacky, but anything that we don't yet have the knowledge to fully explain can be seen as whacky. I think the farmers/grape-growers that are walking around their properties everyday and observing what is happening are the best ones to judge, and the rate at which more and more of them are burying their cow horns is quite convincing!

"But I believe, in well made biodynamic wines, I can taste a difference. I can taste a liveliness on my tongue that really is quite different from conventionally grown wines."

Max Allen » 2008 Sydney International Wine Competition

From a non-practising biodynamicist, this is my brief attempt to explain the basics of biodynamics, it is quite an intriguing topic. There are many websites that can add further to the discussion; such as

We deliver all over Australia at subsidised rates as we want our wine to be accessible and affordable for all. The rate is the same for one bottle as it is for a case of 12 bottles, so to minimise freight you should order a case.

The main courier we use is Australia Post Eparcel, so delivery to PO Boxes is OK. Their delivery timeframe is overnight into Melbourne and 2-5 working days for most other parts of Australia. Wine is normally despatched twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Wine can be left in a safe place at your address if you are not present to accept the delivery. If for some reason your delivery is delayed for more than a day or two then you will be notified.
